Course Overview

Lidcombe Program Training

The Lidcombe Program is a behavioral treatment for early childhood stuttering that is delivered by speech-language pathologists through structured parent training and ongoing clinical supervision.

The program is designed for preschool and early school-age children who stutter and is implemented within everyday speaking situations.

Parents are trained by the SLP to provide specific verbal feedback to the child's speech, while the clinician monitors progress and guides treatment decisions.

Course Overview

The Program is:

- Evidence-based, with strong research support from randomized controlled trials
- Manualized, with clear treatment procedures and clinical criteria
- Measurement-driven, using daily stuttering severity ratings to guide intervention
- Clinician-led, with parents acting as treatment agents under professional supervision

The course will cover:

- The theoretical and clinical foundations of the Lidcombe Program
- Criteria for client selection and differential diagnosis
- Implementation of verbal contingencies
- Severity rating procedures and interpretation
- Clinical decision-making across both stages of the program
- Common clinical challenges and case examples

Course Structure

The Lidcombe Program consists of two stages:

Stage 1

- Focuses on reducing stuttering to very low or zero levels
- Involves regular clinic visits
- Emphasizes parent training, monitoring, and calibration of verbal contingencies

Stage 2

- Focuses on maintaining fluency gains
- Gradual reduction in clinic contact
- Aims to ensure long-term stability and prevent relapse
