Course Overview

Like stuttering, cluttering is a fluency disorder that can be particularly complex to assess and treat. Effective intervention requires careful consideration of multiple factors to support understanding and promote meaningful, long-term progress for individuals who clutter. This online course will focus on the knowledge base, identification, and evidence-informed treatment of cluttering, with an emphasis on differentiating cluttering from stuttering. Participants will also be provided with clinical cases to work through in a guided discussion format. The goal of this course is to increase participants' confidence in working with individuals who clutter by supporting best practices and high-quality clinical intervention.

Course Outcomes

- Discuss cluttering based on the most current research findings.
- Define the core and secondary characteristics of cluttering.
- Create a comprehensive evaluation plan for diagnosing fluency disorders
- Differentiate cluttering & stuttering to increase confidence in the treatment of fluency disorders.
- Develop treatment plans with functional goals to support people who clutter.
- Discuss evidence-based strategies to effectively treat cluttering. Create meaningful therapy activities for clients who clutter.

About the Trainer

Claire Barbao, is a speech-language pathologist and clinical supervisor at the University of Virginia. Her current clinical practice and instruction focus on fluency disorders, motor speech disorders, adult rehabilitation, and person-centered intervention. Claire's clinical experience spans inpatient and outpatient medical settings, private practice, telepractice, and the public school system. She currently supervises graduate clinicians at the Sheila C. Johnson Center at UVA and provides private therapy through her practice, Kindly Speech LLC. She is also a candidate specialist recognized by the American Board of Stuttering, Cluttering and Fluency Disorders. Claire is committed to person-centered care and values collaboration with clients, families, caregivers, and interdisciplinary professionals to best support meaningful communication outcomes.
